Description

For more than three decades, the Law office of Randall J. Perry has assisted individuals and businesses local, regional, national, and international, with legal needs with a transactional practice concentrating in the areas of business law, securities, real estate and estate administration. We consider ourselves to be a boutique value based law firm, providing resources of a larger firm including access to filing with the SEC, e-mail access and many other e-commerce attributes and personal attention concerning the subject matter for which advisory is being sought throughout the progression of the particular transaction(s), all at a fraction of the cost of a larger firm but without sacrificing comprehension and agility. In good times as well as bad you need a law firm of insight as well as acumen. We not only handle the problems you see as existing; we also help scope out, recognize and handle protection from potential problems as well as advising on suggested methods of improving performance. An educated client is preferred by our firm which is why we go to great lengths to increase the awareness of the client to its business orientation and to have them recognize why it is that we give the advice that we do so they are better prepared going forward with their business transactions.

Our firm is committed to helping clients accomplish their business and real estate goals and to plan and administer their estates, regardless as to the level of complexity or involvement, and to giving legal counsel in these and other related and even unrelated areas of legal question and operation; where a matter may be outside the legal practice concentrations practiced by our firm then we should have access to introduction to more suited sources of assistance, as well as to other adjunct and ancillary business services. We have helped a small business owner purchase and develop a piece of real estate into a bed & breakfast; likewise, we have guided a multimillion dollar corporation through the process of becoming a NASDAQ-listed public entity. No matter the scope of our clients business objectives, we provide cost-effective legal solutions tailored to their needs. Contact attorney Randall J. Perry, Esq. to speak with him about your legal issue(s).
